"Modest lovingness" was the message of the hyacinth, the attorney-general explained, then went on to traditional red Liberal rose, "a flower which I understand to be the Christian symbol for the vanities of this world."

Mr. Bonner then plucked a last flower from his garden in obvious eference to dark horse Davie Fulto pending bid to fetch B.C. Tories out of the shade.

"One additional flower that aspires to be recognized in this House is the primrose. Among other things, it signifies early youth, inconstancy, and sad-ness. In the language of the flowers, it pleads, 'Believe

U.S. KEEPS BOMARCS -'COST BEHIND US'

WASHINGTON (CP) - Defence Secretary McNamara suggested today that Bomarc missile squadrons have only limited usefulness against manned bomber attacks but that they will be con-tinued in use for "several years" largely because the United States government has already paid for them.

The Bomarc missiles, McNamara told the congressional armed services committee, "suffer from essentially the same defects as the manned interceptors.'

Nevertheless, we plan to continue the Bomare force for several years, since the large initial investment costs are already behind us."

The Peters on Lyall Street enjoyed the "personal serv ice" of the Esquimali police-cum-fire department Tuesday when their house caught fire.

After Reeve Wurtele's statement last week in which he rejected Esquimalt participation in the Archer survey, we thought we would watch his boys in action when the alarm was rung in about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday

We were already aware that the policemen and firemen in Esquimalt are 15 and the same.

The faded pink truck with "EFD" emblazoned on its hood chugged fitfully in front of 1333 Lyall.

Inside, a dapper gentleman in civilian clothes and over-coat was wrestling with a hiccupping hose.

The fire was supposed to be in a wall behind the kitchen stove, but somehow the ceiling and other three walls were sprayed. Water even was dripping in an adjoin-

Beyond Brussels

IT IS A COMPLETE ILLUSION to suppose, as the Canadian government seems to suppose, that Britain's failure to enter the European Common Market will leave the existing trade situation unchanged. The situation will be drastically changed and Canada cannot escape the changes.

In the first place, unable to sell massively in Europe (though it certainly will sell there in some de-gree) Britain will seek larger markets overseas, especially in Commonwealth countries like Canada.

When the Canadian government did everything in its power to keep Britain out of the Common Market did not encourage the sale of British goods here. On the contrary it restricted their sale in the case of textiles, automobiles, ships and shipping services. Last year, for example, Britain increased its sales to the United States by 17 per cent while its sales to Canada dropped by 15 per cent.

It has long been obvious that Britain cannot continue indefinitely to support its heavy trading deficit in the Canadian market. Excluded from Europe, it will ask the chance to sell more here or, alternatively, it will buy less from Canada. Has the Canadian government thought about that in its long quarrel with

It is perfectly clear, however, that the Commonwealth, even if it were prepared to treat Britain more generously, cannot supply all the markets it will need as an alternaworld-wide expansion of trade and a world-wide reduction of the barriers now restricting it.

That is the purpose of President Kennedy's Trade Expansion Act, but its scope will be drastically limited, in its present form anyway, with Britain outside the Common

the American legislation. If the purpose of the legislation thus undermined a more serious hreat to the president's trad initiative is the prospect that the Common Market, having excluded Britain, may construct a high com-mon tariff against the world. If happened the prospects trade expansion would be bleak

To prevent it happening Mr. Kennedy is planning a free world conference to discuss tariff reductions in the near future. The conference will be a preliminary warm-up for the next round of GATT negotiations which will begin next year under the impetus of the Trade in many of us. Mitty, you will remem-Expansion Act.

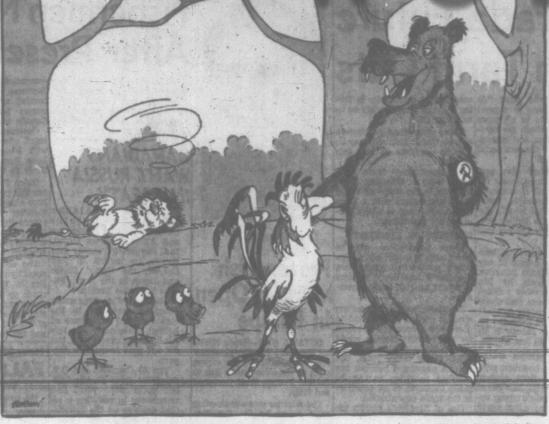

The Canadian government says it attaches great importance to this year's conference and claims credit for proposing it in the first place. But so far the government has done nothing to promote the purposes of the conference. Instead, it has adopted a protectionist policy by devaluing the Canadian dollar, imemergency tariffs (which cannot be maintained much longer), inventing various tax devices and, the case of Japan, applying "voluntary" export quotas to restrict imports.

What permanent policy, as distinguished from temporary gestures, does the government intend to follow? Most likely we shall not know until another election has clarified Canadian politics. Traffic accidents claim many times the number of lives lost in plane crashes. If the circumstances are unusual, they make news. Otherwise they are treated by the public as inevitable—a fact of life that has to be faced with the increasing use of the automobile.

Yet to a degree far beyond that of the air mishap, traffic accidents are pre-ventable. They happen, in most cases, because someone has operated a car carelessly, has ignored obvious dangers, has invited tragedy by taking chances no one has a right to take with his own

Life and Mathematics WE HAVE ALL BEEN READing for some time of the threat that the rapid increase in the world's population will create a crisis in the not distant future. So much has been said about it, in fact, that we may tend to become a little bored with it all, to dismiss the warnings of the experts as far-fetched—"they're always warning us about something."

Now come some cold hard figures from an unemotional sourcethe Food and Agriculture Organiza-

Almost anyone of 30 years or less has a good chance of being here when the predictions come true around the end of the century. Slightly older folk will see the population crisis well on its way before they die. It is a problem that concerns everyone, yet one that little is being done to meet.

Briefly, the FAO notes that it from the dawn of history to the mid-1800s for the world's population to reach one billion. But by 1960 in a period of only about 100 years the population reached three bil-This figure is expected to double within the next 40 years, After 2000 AD, everything else be-

MEN AND WOMEN WHO DO not know a line he had written, knew by reputation aged, white-haired, respected and unconventional Robert Frost. On him had been bestowed the name of uncrowned poet laureate of the United States and to him presidents had paid tribute.

Half-Ready

ON Monday night, with a half dozen other adults, I helped to run off the city springboard diving championships and encountered a practice which could have significance far broader than competitions in a swimming pool.

In diving events the contestant has to perform a certain number of specified dives in the compulsory section and additional and different ones chosen on his own option. For very young entries Stott .
the number of stunts to be performed is four, for seniors 10. Monday evening several of the contestants could not execute the number of dives required in the different classes. When one was announced which they could not do, they jumped off the board. Since no contest drew more than four entries, it was sible to place second or third in some of them without knowing how to do enough dives to complete the list.

Stott

It was expedient for clubs to enter in-competent performers because it was a dual meet. Points for placing went to the re-spective teams whether or not their repreatives were in a position to attempt a full slate of dives.

Reduced to absurdity-and in some instances they came close to that reduction -it would be possible on this theory for person to be a champion or runner-up loing little more than falling off the end of the springboard.

There are two opinions held on the de-gree of competency a diver, young or ex-perienced, should attain before entering a contest. Some of the straight-laced purists believe no one should go into a contest unless he or she has the ability to make reasonably honest attempt at performing sufficient dives to meet the competition's requirements. The other side argues that youngsters have to start somewhere, so let them compete even if they haven't a reper-toire sufficient to carry them through the event. Ultimately, these people believe, the requirements.

It doesn't always work that way. A kid who wins an event of this description, or is runner-up, very frequently gets the idea that he or she is a diver. "Tain't necessarily And what kind of philosophy is bred in the youngster?

HOME GARDEN

Nobody particularly cares about such incidents related solely to a city competition in a technical event in a swimming pool. No matter how big the splash of a bad dive, the ripples soon subside. But is it good policy to allow children to think that they can get by with something less than mediocrity? And how far does the attitude extend into our daily living?

Is it good enough to permit youngsters to think they are equipped to participate in anything when they know only about half the mechanics of the activity in which they are to participate? Is this, perhaps, what was the participate of the par we're doing not only with youngsters when we license many people to drive cars?

How does it work in the less obvious

Some years ago a senior statistician found that his deductions were inaccurate and he went over and over his work without detecting his flaw. Finally he found it. In the material submitted to him there were errors in arithmetic. Somebody was adding up columns of figures incorrectly.

The fault was traced to a junior recently out of school. She was told that absolute accuracy was essential in her relatively menial job. This surprised the young lady and left her a bit indignant. At high school she had maintained an average in mathe pretty good. Why wasn't it good enough for the statistician?

It's impossible, of course, in the complex world of our times to be 100 per cent-right on all things. Nevertheless there are some points on which we have to be completely accurate. Mediocrity and fifty-percentism won't do.

In our home we have a young man-a very young man under 18 months of age-whom we applaud loudly when he makes a sound that bears some resemblance to a word. We're trying to encourage him. Sometime, however, before he's 18 years somebody will have to bring home to him that it isn't quite good enough to make sounds nebulously similar to words if he wants to communicate and compete

A person can't jump from a boat to the dock if the dock is 25 feet away and he can jump only 15 feet. Let's not kid him. Let's not deceive the kids either by allowing them to assume that being half-prepared is good

During the war years a very tough flying instructor made the point succinctly to his students, "Up there," he said, "you've got to know what you're doing. One mis-take is too many."

While most of the 1961 Smokies are still around, there are a couple of major changes in the lineup. Lost through retirement are captain Cal Hock-ley and right winger Norm Le-nardon, who scored the winning goal in the 1961 championships. Kromm negotiated unsuccess-fully for old pro Bert Olmstead, has hopes of getting is Jackie McLeod of Saskatoon Quakers.

"I have been after him for about a month now," said

"There seems to be some trouble with the Quakers-they don't want to let him go." The coach feels he has a topnotch club defensively.

"I think we are a lot stronge this year than we were in 1961," he said. "We have two of the top goalies in the game. Reno Zanier and Seth Martin can both do a good job. I won't be afraid to put either one in the TRAIL (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters, playing a farewell game before taking off in pursuit of the downed Spokane Comets of the Western Hockey League 4-1.

Spokane is in the cellar of the WHL southern division.

Comets opened the scoring with a first-period goal by Bev Bell, but from then on it was all Trail. Newcomer Ted Maki, Harry Smith, Walt Peacosh and Hugh McIntyre scored for Smokies.

There were 17 penalties in the rugged contest, 10 going to Spokane.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

NEW YORK-The freaks who dominate his sport make

BOB COUSY

Cousey appear stunted although he is an inch over six.

At 34 and after 13 years of doing it for money, the greatest of all basketball players will move out of the National Basketball Association at the end of this season to coach Boston College. In a prolonged and reflective Interview, Cousy yesterday discussed the trends and al-terations that influenced the game during his spectacular time with Boston Celtics. "I would imagine the rule which forces you to shoot within 24 seconds after you get the ball is the biggest change," he said. "The jump shot is the other. The jump shot is now being used to the exclusion of all other things. It has advanced the game . . . given it a better offence. But the jump shot is also killing the game. "Kids get a jump shot in college and feel they don't You see an All-American come have to learn anything else. into the league and you say how the hell did he make the pros with just a jump shot? On the college level a good jump shot will carry you through. But as far as the basic things a pro needs, he's lost.

There's No Defence for Jump Shot

"I saw an old movie of a game I played in when I went to Holy Cross. We played Kansas in 1949. Only three jump shots were taken in the entire game. In a college game today you won't see three other shots. There's no way to defence against the jump shot . guy shoots from the exact position every time. But if he varies his distance from the basket, you can't stop him.

"You have to guard a player honest, and keep retreating from him: If the shooter's six-foot and the guard's sixfoot-six, he may be able to deflect it occasionally. But no one can stop the jump shot consistently.

"I like to have my shot blocked once in a while. The theory of defence is to stay well-grounded . . . not to leave your feet. If you leave your feet consistently, the next time you try to block the jump, you're in the air and your man's gone by you. A good fake and the defensive man is off the ground and helpless.

Bill Russell is the only one can block the jump shot. It's because Bill's so quick. He waits until the last possible moment before he goes up. He doesn't commit himself to the jump until the ball has left the man's hand. The average guy has to anticipate his jump and can't wait.

"Bill's the best centre I've ever seen. He's not a particularly good shooter but he has learned how to move properly and gets his angle on the basket. He has a good attitude. If he makes a mistake or has a bad game, he wants to know why.

"I've never seen a better forward than Elgin Baylor. He does as many things as anyone can do. He can hang up in the air . . . six-foot-five and 230 pounds . . . and control his body while he's off the ground. He's a great one . . . shooter, passer.

* * * "The best guard to come along is Oscar Robertson. He is six-foot-five and does things with the grace of a six-footer.
ine best shot I ever played with or against has to be Bill Sharman. He did it consistently. Carl Braun has to get a call as a shooter, too. "As far as playmakers go, Dick McGuire developed it to a fault, although at just the act of making the play he to a fault, although at just the act of making the play he was the greatest. He refused to shoot, so obsessed was he in setting up the play. After a while, you knew he would not shoot and you could drop off him.

"Little defensive men always gave me the most trouble. I'm quick, not fast. I can get the shot off better against a big man because I'm quicker. Guys who gave me the most trouble I'd say were Slater Martin and Larry Costello. Robertson doesn't bother me too much.

"Naturally, the big men have chappend the gaves a let."

"Naturally, the big men have changed the game a lot. Ten years ago . . . guys close to seven-loot were just goons. But now they are guys with good reactions and co-

Now People Are Tired of Dunkers

"Funny thing, Sharman used to play baseball. He was called a small man in our game. But in baseball Bill was a big outfielder. But it's unfair to legislate against the big man . . . to penalize guys for being tall. It's really the only sport that a really tall man is adjusted to.
"At first, people get a kick out of the dunk shot. But after a while, they get tired of it. It's too easy. Now the only man in the league who can counteract Wilt Chamberlain is Bill Russell. But in a few years . . . every club in the league will have a guy to handle the really big ones. They will equalize each other. That's why legislation isn't

"If I came along now, I probably wouldn't make the league now, I'd be considered too small. I've been around ne Mr. Cousy. I got to stop him. I feel old enough. No, I doubt if I'll ever want to coach the pros. I wouldn't be able to take what the guys—including myself—are getting away with."

Said the champion about the loquacious and boastful Clay who has promised to knock out Liston in six "If he comes to me, I'll kill him. And if he runs, I'll catch him and kill him. If Clay lasts one round with me I'll be a disgrace to boxing." Earlier he told a writer:

"Clay is naming the round he'll knock me out in. Well, I'll name the time, I'll have a man standing at ringside, shouting the time, '15 seconds, 30, 45,' and then boom, it will be over."

Liston, who wowed an audience of 1,000 with his humor suggested a surgeon would have to be at ringside if and when he fights "big mouth."

"The surgeon will have to operate to remove the glove I'm going to ram down Clay's throat."

Perry Moss Quits Als Over Policy Matters

MONTREAL (UPI)-Perry L. Moss today resigned ette football club because of a "policy disagreement."

Moss, 36, resigned following a special meeting of the board of directors. Club president Ted Workman said that "the full salary arrangements under the terms of the contract will be honored."

Workman did not immediately elaborate on what the disagreement was or what the unfilled terms of the contract were. It was believed however, that Moss had two years to go on a five-year contract.

Moss came to the Alouettes three years ago after one year as athletic director and football coach at Florida State University. In his three years as coach, Alouettes finished last once and third on the other two occasions. They reached the finals of the Eastern Conference play-offs this year but were eliminated by Hamilton Tiger-

There appears to be a bit of a controversy going on whether or not dogs are intelligent and loyal, Some people say man's best friend is governed by instinct, association, and training. Others say Rover could do problems in calculus if he had a mind to.

In years past, I could have solved this argument very quickly, by discussing it with whatever dog happened to be living at our house. Unfortunately, at the present time, there is no resident dog at our house, and I have only a nodding acquaintance with the neighborhood dogs. I am not on speaking terms with any of them.

So the best I could do was discuss the matter with Little Miss Muffet, the small, female-type cat who deigns to take her meals with us.

Admittedly, Miss Muffet might be accused of prejudice.
But there can be no question of her opinion.
"Dogs? Intelligent?" said Miss Muffet. "Hah!
"If dogs were intelligent, would they do all the foolish things their foolish owners tell them to do. Would a dog with reasoning powers lie down and play dead? Would an intelligent dog fetch a stick which its owner has just thrown away? "Would an intelligent dog let himself be dressed up in doll's clothing and prance around on his hind egs, so his master can make a few dollars on television?

"No," said Miss Muffet, "much as I hate to knock the dog, it just doesn't seem possible he has reasoning powers. "If he did," said Miss Muffet, "chances are, the next time his owner gave him a command, the dog would reason it out, and decide the heck with it.

"You ever see a cat jump through a hoop?" asked Miss

"You ever see a cat jump through a hoop?" asked Miss Muffet, narrowing her eyes. "Cats are intelligent."
"No," I said, "but don't you think it is just possible dogs are intelligent, and only do what they're told out of a deep sense of loyalty to their owners?"
"Are you implying," asked Miss Muffett, "that cats are intelligent but not loyal?"
"Now they toware brought up the subject." I said "how."

"Now that you've brought up the subject," I said, "how about you? Are you loyal?"

"I am devotedly, completely, thoroughly, always and ever, true blue, loyal," said Miss Muffet.

"If I may ask," I asked, "to whom are you loyal to, whom?"

"Me," said Miss Muffet,

It's Up to Her, Friend!

By Bob Barnes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine promised her husband she wouldn't smoke any more, so she took up chewing to bacco. It is disgusting enough to see a man chewing, but a woman doing it looks terrible. She claims lots of women chew but few people know it.

I have hinted that it looks bad, but she goes right on chewing. The poor soul must have the habit so strong she your readers to pray for her?

A FRIEND

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my daughter. She is a lovely, intelligent, happily married woman with two fine children. She has been seeing a clinical psychologist for a frivolous expense. How can I convince my daughter she is foolish for continuing this costly fad?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: One need not be mentally ill to require help with an emotional problem. If your daughter thinks she needs this kind of help, leave her alone. And be glad to seek it.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Fifty-eight-dollars-and-twenty-seven-cents."

Make Your Easter Bonnet

A 'Did-It-Myself' Original

Anything goes when it comes to hats this season—flowers, straw, tulle, or fabric in stovepipe, breton, pillbox, wide brimmed, turban or cloche style—like I said, anything

But to get the most fun out of these frivolous things

Italian straw braid is 80 cents a yard, and three yards is sufficient for an original model. Black patent straw is the newest material in this year. Net and tulle comes in all shades, with or without polka dots.

Flowers in every hue made of filmy sheer and organza are 60 cents apiece. Take a dozen, scatter them around a hat and you are all set to step out to any garden party that comes I gravitated toward a straw hat in the most luscious shade of pink (the milliner said this is the most expensive hat in the shop) and found it costs only nine dollars.

There won't be an Easter bonnet on Fifth Avenue that will look any more extravaganza than one you could create, or have created, in this shop.

$400,000 School Planned at Duncan

DUNCAN-Construction of a $400,000 parochial school on 14 acres at Tzouhalem and Maple Bay Roads is the objective of the Cowichan District Catholic Council.

It is hoped to start construction within two years. The project is to be built in stages, and when complete will include a gymnasium, 12 class-and-activity rooms, a church, chapel, and staff living quarters.

DUNCAN-A pin for making 50 blood donations to the Canadian Red Cross was presented to William Mooney of Duncan Monday night during the annual meeting of the

He will also receive a citation from headquarters. An additional 15 persons were awarded pins for giving a total of 10 blood donations and one person for 20.

SOOKE-Sooke residents are not opposed to an extension of oyster farming on the Sooke shore, according to Mrs. W. J. Ford of Lynncroft Road. Henry J. Helgesen has applied for his third foreshore lease immediately west of the mouth of Sooke River. There have been reports of objections because the bed would rfere with clam digging and duck hunting. Mrs. Ford said oyster farming creates employment for local people. She denied reports that residents are up in arms over the application

There appears to be a bit of a controversy going on about whether or not dogs are intelligent and loyal.

Some people say man's best friend is governed by instinct, association, and training. Others say Rover could do problems in calculus if he had a mind to.

MONTE

In years past, I could have solved this argument very quickly, by discussing it with whatever dog happened to living at our house. Unfortunately, at the present time, there is no resident dog at our house, and I have only a nodding acquaintance with the neighborhood dogs. I am not on speaking terms with any of them.

So the best I could do was discuss the matter with Little Miss Muffet, the small, female-type cat who deigns to take her meals with us.

Admittedly, Miss Muffet might be accused of prejudice. But there can be no question of her opinion.
"Dogs? Intelligent?" said Miss Muffet. "Hah!
"If dogs were intelligent, would they do all the foolish things their foolish owners tell them to do. Would a dog with, reasoning powers fie down and play dead? Would an Intelligent dog fetch a stick which its owner has just thrown

Would an intelligent dog let himself be dressed up in doll's clothing and prance around on his hind egs, so his master can make a few dollars on television?

"No," said Miss Muffet, "much as I hate to knock the dog, it just doesn't seem possible he has reasoning powers. "If he did," said Miss Muffet, "chances are, the next time his owner gave him a command, the dog would reason it out, and decide the heck with it.

"You ever see a cat jump through a hoop?" asked Miss Muffet, narrowing her eyes, "Cats are intelligent."
"No," I said, "but don't you think it is just possible dogs are intelligent, and only do what they're told out of a deep sense of loyalty to their owners?"

"Are you implying," asked Miss Muffett, "that cats are intelligent but not loyal?"

"Now that you've brought up the subject," I said, "how about you? Are you loyal?"

"I am devotedly, completely, thoroughly, always and ever, true blue, loyal," said Miss Muffet. "If I may ask," I asked, "to whom are you loyal to Others spoke, Stanley Carnell, SC, of South Peace River, who by a pro-cess of democratic thinking which baffles this reporter would deprive welfare recipients of the vote.

But it was Mr. Bonner's speech delivered off the cuff with only a file of newspaper clippings for ref-erence—that held the attention of a gallery which grows more sparse as the Legislative Assembly digs in for an expected six to eight-week session.

As I predicted on Monday, tion leader Strachan's opposition reads; gallant if bumbling attempt to obscure NDP's three awk-ward Cs-Cox, Castro and Cuba—in a flurry of petti-coats didn't go unchallenged. So here I give you Dapper Bob Bonner, chivvying the Opposition with a parable of flowers.

Appropriate

"I thought it appropriate after the disturbance last week," he said, referring to the NDP buzz over South Burnaby's Cedric Cox and his reaction to Castro's Cuba, "that when the Opposition leader rose to speak, he should be wearing a red carnation, the emblem of pure love.

And since love was in the air, Mr. Bonner continued, it would be fitting for the gov ernment ranks to sport white hyacinths on budget

"Modest lovingness" was the message of the hyacinth, the attorney general explained, then went on to shake a few petals from the traditional red Liberal rose, flower which I understand to be the Christian symbol for the vanities of this world."

Mr. Bonner then plucked a last flower from his garden in obvious, eference to dark horse Davie Fulton's pending bid to fetch B.C. Tories out of the shade,

"One additional flower that spires to be recognized in this House is the primrose, Among other things, it signifies early youth, inconstancy, and sadess. In the language of the flowers, it pleads, 'Believe
